Celebrating our Alumni

Judge Tini Clark attended Wesley College in 1988. She later studied law at the University of Waikato and graduated with a Bachelor of Laws.

She was admitted to the bar in 1994, and went on to practise in South Auckland, Hawkes Bay, Gisborne and Hamilton where she specialised in criminal law as both defence counsel and Crown prosecutor.

Of Tainui descent (Ngāti Tīpa, Ngāti Tahinga and Ngāti Āmaru), Judge Clark has over 25 years of legal experience and in 2018 became the first Waikato Māori female District Court Judge. A special swearing in ceremony was held on Te Kotahitanga marae.

Sir Richard Taylor was born in Cheshire, England and emigrated as a child to New Zealand. He studied at Wesley College in the late 70's and later became a graduate of the former Wellington Polytechnic School of Design.

In 1987 he co-founded the worldwide renowned Weta Workshop producing creatures and makeup effects for TV and film.

In 2010 the five-time Oscar winner was made a Knight Companion of the NZ Order of Merit for his services to film, and in 2012 he was named New Zealander of the Year.

Sir Ian Mune was born in Auckland, and educated at Wesley College. He is a New Zealand character actor, director, and screenwriter. His screen acting career spans four decades and more than 50 roles.

His work as a film director includes hit comedy Came a Hot Friday, an adaptation of classic New Zealand play The End of the Golden Weather, and What Becomes of the Broken Hearted?, the sequel to Once Were Warriors.

He won a Feltex award in 1975 after starring in one-off television drama Derek and in 1994, Mune won another New Zealand television award after playing Prime Minister Sir Robert Muldoon in television mini-series Fallout, which depicted the end of the Muldoon-led National Government.
